FOREWORD

We treasure the memories of our high school life and realize that they will become even more priceless to us through these years of crisis. So it is with pleasure and pride that we present the 1942 HYLANDER with the hopes that through it these memories will live on forever.

DEDICATION

Sincerity in helping others, sincerity in talking with others, sincerity in laughing with others—these are some of the finest attributes a man may possess. To a man whose musical abilities have enabled him to lead our band to “A” ratings, to a man who is never too busy to listen to the problems and ambitions of his students or too occupied to enjoy himself with these students, to BERNARD HIRSCH, the staff of '42 is happy to dedicate this issue of the HYLANDER.

HISTORY of SENIOR CLASS

For the first time in the fall of 1938, two hundred and seventeen shy, timid, frightened, and truly green freshmen assembled on the campus of Marion High School. Looking at us one would never have imagined that we could have been organized into any kind of systematic body. Much to our surprise we soon were in the trend of things, and many of us were finding for ourselves a place on the football, basketball, and baseball teams. Tillie Sinclair, "Our" Cheer Leader, could plainly be heard as she yelled on the sidelines. As vacation came and we looked back we realized that we had not accomplished so much, but we were no longer the shy young things that entered high school the fall before.

Leaving a few behind, we entered the Sophomore Class with one hundred and forty members. From this group we chose Faye Black, president; Jonas Hicks, vice-president; Doyle Ayers, secretary; and Bruce Harris, treasurer. Again our class was active in athletics, starring Doyle Ayers and the famous Harrises, Fred, Bruce, and Von Ray. That year the cheer leaders added a new member from the Sophomore Class, Faye Black. The year was a mixture of joy and sorrow, for in February our building burned. Then many changes took place, and we began to hike to classes in the elementary building, scout cabin, and churches. For once we had excuses for our tardies. That year a new member was added to our class, John Wellman, who soon found a place in our midst.

In the fall of 1940 we entered the new building as Juniors. O. C. Duncan headed our class as president, with John Wellman as vice-president, Faye Black as secretary, and Tillie Sinclair as treasurer. Our same stars shone brightly on the football field, and a new member was added to the yelling squad, Lois Watkins, who made her debut as a cheer leader. The year was crowded with many hours of work and fun. Our first affair was the Hallowe'en Carnival, a financial success. Louise Ramsey, a newcomer to our class, carried off the honors as beauty queen. That year the Marionette appeared on our campus, and Jonas Hicks, John Wellman, O. C. Duncan, Ernest House, and other members of our class helped to make this, our first venture into the newspaper world, a success. The play, "Oh Aunt Jerusha," was presented, and considered a tremendous success; so we plunged ahead with bigger ideas, the most important of which was the Junior-Senior Banquet. This gala affair was carried out very successfully, using National Defense as the theme. For the first time in the history of our school a recreational hour was enjoyed after the banquet. Then one of the greatest honors bestowed upon our class was the election of seven members of the class into the Honor Society. They were Faye Black, Murriel Carrigan, Rosalind Clark, Ruth Hawkins, Iris Mainer, Henry Leonard, and John Wellman.

We returned in the fall of 1941 as dignified seniors to prove that we were capable of filling our places as leaders of the student body. With John Wellman as president, Otis Ledbetter and Fred Washburn as vice-presidents, Murriel Carrigan as secretary, and Virginia Ellis as treasurer, we started our last year. Again our class took the lead in athletics, with Fred Harris as captain of the football team, Bruce Harris winning a berth on the all conference team, and John Wellman best all around football player. How swiftly the days have flown! How happy we have been! And now we are rapidly approaching the goal to which we have so long looked forward—graduation—when we will take our last step from high school into the world.

—FAYE BLACK, Historian.

PROPHECY of SENIOR CLASS

DEAR MR. HOLLAND:

Since my trip to South America to study Public Relations I have not had a minute to write you. It so happened that this trip brought me directly or indirectly in contact with every member of our 1942 senior class.

In your busy life as Admiral in the Navy for five years I don't suppose you had any time to keep track of this class. Now that you have faithfully served your country as Admiral and are again back into school work as State Superintendent of Schools, I'm sure you will be interested to hear about the activities of the class.

On my way to New York I ran into Pat Kirby. She had been to Duke University to give a series of lectures on "Cancer and Its Cure," and was on her way back to Johns Hopkins Hospital where she is now a medical doctor.

Pat was still up-in-the-air because of a surprise. She had, attending her lectures at Duke University, three nurses—Edith Poole, Annie Sue Pittman, and June Poteat, and two doctors—Herman Baldwin and Dewey Dixon. Edith, Annie Sue, and June had completed their training at the Duke Hospital and after graduation were kept on the hospital staff there. Herman Baldwin and Dewey Dixon are practicing medicine in Raleigh, N. C.

Pat learned through Herman and Dewey that Arthur Byrd is an attorney in Durham. Harold Trinks is still acting as lieutenant in Uncle Sam's peacetime program. Clifton Willis is president of the Southern Railroad. Henry Leonard and Harold Goodman, as co-directors of the Chicago University band, are reflecting credit on Mr. Hirsch's training.

June, Edith, and Annie Sue all talked at once telling Pat everything that had happened during the past ten years. According to them, Mary Miller and Claude Revis are now "Mr. and Mrs." Marie Curtis and Ruth Mason own and operate the Curtis-Mason 5-10 and 25 Cent Store on Main Street in Marion.

Those diamonds Ruth Teal and Alma Treadway flashed in our eyes after the Christmas vacation of 1942 have proved that they were intended for something more than just simply to sparkle, for Ruth and Alma are both happily married and have lovely homes in Marion, N. C.

Otis Ledbetter, assisted by Inez Webb, is taking Cincinnati with his swing. Virginia Ellis and Doris Anderson are members of the Philadelphia Philharmonic Orchestra.

Pat was still talking when our train pulled into the Union Station in Washington, but as she was to give her lectures again she bade me a "bon voyage" and was gone.

As my train started puffing on its way, a lady, cultured and refined, caught my eye as she came into my Pullman. At a second glance, I recognized Helen Reel. Helen had been home for a few days' rest from her concert tours and was now making her way back to New York where once again she would thrill thousands with her playing.

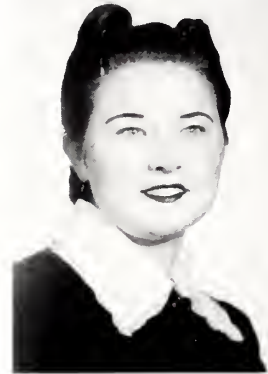

Helen had found time to keep up her correspondence with Faye Black, a prominent lawyer in Asheville, N. C. Faye had written in her last letter that Bill Smith was a well-known electrician in Atlanta. Murriel Carrigan and Lois Watkins were with the Carolina Playmakers. Dorothy Morrison was dietitian at the Mission Hospital in Asheville, N. C. Helen Smarr was an interior decorator with headquarters in Charlotte, N. C. Doyle Ayers was general manager of the Belk-Broome Store in Marion, N. C.

Helen interrupted her reading of Faye's letter long enough to tell me that she frequently saw Lockie Silver on her way to the New York Times office where she serves as feature editor of that paper.

Faye's letter was not completed, so we again read with interest that William Rowe and Ralph McCurry had bought controlling interest in the D. P. Pender Store of Fayetteville, N. C. June Fortune is still practicing what she learned during her study of national defense and is still serving well-balanced lunches to school children of McDowell County. Evelyn Dorton is married and lives in Albemarle, N. C. Robert Gibson is sports commentator, and just a night or two ago he gave a review of Fred and Bruce Harris' success with the Chicago Bears. Margaret Hensley is back at Mason Hi coaching her own basketball team to victory.

The porter came through to warn us that we would soon be in New York, and the letter was again interrupted. My ship was ready to sail from New York, so I had to bid Helen good-bye.

From my guest list I found that Lucille Payne and Martha Biggerstaff were on the same ship with me. Although it was late when I saw them, we talked far into the night. It seemed that everyone except me knew they were going as missionaries to join Margaret Burroughs and Lillian Renfro who were in Brazil waiting for their arrival.

It was Lucille and Martha who told me that William Laughridge was in the undertaking business in Forest City, N. C., and that Francis Ruth had succeeded in getting a book of his poems published. Joyce Bost, Charlene Dale, and Virginia Hollifield are said to be designing dresses for some outstanding actresses.

By the time we had discussed this with many of our classmates it was very late, so we had to retire. Although I was tired from such a busy day, I was unable to go to sleep. For a long time I lay awake. Finally sleep came and in a dream I was affronted by the ghost of the class of '42. It seemed that I was carried into the clouds where I could look over all the cities of the United States. It was the spirit's wish that I learn of the classmates about whom I had heard nothing.

At first I was attracted by a great noise. It was in Hollywood, California. There across the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio lot strolled Fred Washburn, by vote the most eligible bachelor in Hollywood. In studio "C" were Walter Mask, casting director, and Rosalind Clark, make-up artist and gown designer, arguing about the lighting effects most flattering to Mildred Mangum, glamorous actress-of-the-year.

Turning from Hollywood I approached New York City. Upon the twenty-fifth floor of a huge skyscraper, I recognized Robert Hawkins, a popular lawyer, and his secretary, Gladys Carver. Hearing a big commotion in the front of this immense building, I rushed to the scene. Here I found James Neighbors, society reporter for the New York Times, trying desperately to get a snapshot of Ruth Smith, now the richest lady of New York City.

Wishing to see some of North Carolina and my home town I turned so that I could see Raleigh. On the campus of Meredith College Marilee Penland, absorbed in her work, was patiently teaching her pupils shorthand and bookkeeping. Behind the closed doors of the Dean's office was Iris Mainer.

Leaving the college, I looked into the city. At the Department of Agriculture I noticed Lee Westmoreland and his secretary, Justine Curtis, diligently working out an agricultural program for the coming year. In an adjoining building, Hazel Wilkerson sat designing models for her own "Ladies' Ready-to-Wear" department.

Now for Marion. It had certainly grown. Howard Burgin, president of the Ford Motor Company, darted down the street and was lost in an impenetrable line of traffic. Going to the Court Square I saw Charles Riddle, owner of Riddle's Furniture Store. A new institute, the Hague Orphans' Home, had been founded by Myrtle Huffman. Below the home was the new office of the Duke Power and Light Company, where Wilton Hawkins, busily engaged in sending out monthly light bills, was taking care of the books.

At this time I was eager to see Asheville. There was Louise Patton, the new city librarian. In Maxine's Beauty Shop I spied Maxine Padgett, owner, and Rubye Grindstaff, manicurist, pausing and refreshing themselves with ice cold bottles of Coca-Cola, from the plant managed by Truett Loudermilk. Out of Louise Ramsey's Fur Storage Company bounced Hazel Head. She can afford two or three fur coats a season, now that she owns the new modernistic building which houses Milady's Gown Shop.

In Durham I found Jonas Hicks supplying that city with up-to-the-minute news. On Main Street in a jewelry store Marvin Flack was selling a diamond clip to Bill Walker for a present to his wife on her birthday. Bill is now a successful dentist. Kenneth Bradford, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Durham, was slowly going to his office to write his Sunday sermon.

In the police station, Greenville, S. C., I heard Howard Burgin telling a mystery story to a group of small boys. Oehmig Rowe is the pharmacist in the large drug store on the corner, owned by James Parker, formerly an army pilot.

Eventually the cities seemed to grow dimmer and farther away. Screaming hysterically, I fell to earth. Startled by voices, I sat up in bed and beside me stood Lucille and Martha with the ship's doctor. I overheard the whispered word "seasick". After I explained my dream, the doctor turned on his heel and abruptly left the room.

"Why, that wasn't a dream at all," said Lucille, "that was a vision, for what you saw is really true."

"And," added Martha, "it's really true that it is only about fifteen minutes before dinner."

Hurriedly I dressed for dinner. I was ready to go up on deck when I heard a gentle tapping at my door. To my, "Who is it?" came the reply, "Ship's steward." When I opened the door he handed me a small white card. Typewritten on it were these words: "The captain of the ship requests the honor of your presence at his table this noon." Believe it or not, that invitation was from our own John Wellman. It was his ship on which I had sailed from New York.

I send best wishes for your happiness and success.

Yours truly,

RUTH HAWKINS.

Summary of Football Season

In the fall of '41 Marion High School's new coach, Charlie Walters, began the football season with a group of 13 boys. Although hopes for a strong football team looked disastrous, Coach Walters encouraged the boys and on September 27 the team defeated Hendersonville, 27 to 0, on their home field. With this encouragement more boys came out for practice and by the end of the season there were 28 hard-hitting, hustling young men on the squad.

However, much to the disappointment of everyone, our scrappy little team lost to the Waynesville team at Waynesville, 34 to 12, on the next Friday. Next the team played the long awaited game with Morganton, only to lose to this strong team, 7 to 0, in the last few minutes of play.

On Friday, October 24, the boys played Forest City on their home field, defeating the opposing team, 41 to 0. Then October 31 the Rippers played one of its most thrilling games at Canton, leaving with a scoreless tie. Playing at home the following week, the boys defeated Newton High, 65 to 0, but then as all teams have their off days, so it was with the Marion team losing at Cherryville, 41 to 0. November 21, Thanksgiving Day, the Lincolnton team came to Marion's field and was defeated, 19 to 13, in the last 15 seconds of the last and most thrilling game of the season.

Bruce Harris and Buford Dixon were chosen as halfback and guard on the All-Western Conference Team. Bruce was selected for his hard plunging and scoring ability, and Buford was selected for his outstanding blocking and all around playing. Captain Fred Harris, Bob Gibson, Dumont Chapman, Fred Washburn, Doyle Ayers, J. B. Walker, Bill Walker, Jack Byrd, and Arthur Byrd were outstanding throughout the season. John Wellman was chosen best all around football player and Charles Ray Baker was chosen best scrub.
